Britain in 1066

In 1066, Edward the Confessor was the Anglo-Saxon king of England. After his death, his brother-in-law Harold Godwinson was crowned King Harold II, although several others also claimed the right to the throne.

Potential kings

Harold Godwinson

Harold was Edward the Confessor's brother-in-law and the most powerful Saxon earl. Harold's mother was related to the former king, Cnut the Great.

William of Normandy

William was the second cousin of Edward the Confessor and the Duke of Normandy. William claimed Edward had named him as his successor.

Harald Hardrada

Harald was a fierce Viking warrior and King of Norway. He claimed he was a descendant and successor of Cnut the Great.

Edgar Ætheling

Edgar had the strongest claim to the throne. He was the grandson of a previous English king, Edmund I. However, he was in his early teens in 1066.

Battle of Hastings

Build-up to the battle

King Harold II's brother, Tostig, had gone to Norway to help the Viking king, Harald Hardrada, to take the throne of England. King Harold II's army fought against Harald Hardrada in a battle at Stamford Bridge in Yorkshire on 25th September 1066. After a long battle, King Harold II defeated Harald Hardrada. He marched his army to the south of England where William of Normandy and his troops had landed at Pevensey Bay.

During the battle

King Harold II told his men to get ready for battle on Senlac Hill, Hastings on 14th October 1066. Both sides fought a hard battle. By the early evening, the battle was over. King Harold II and his brothers had been killed.

After the battle

William was crowned King of England on Christmas Day 1066 and became known as William the Conqueror. The time of the Anglo-Saxons had ended and the Norman period began. King William took over the Saxon lands, introduced the French language and built many castles.

Bayeux Tapestry

The Bayeux Tapestry tells the story of the Norman invasion and the Battle of Hastings in 50 different scenes. It is an embroidered cloth over 70m long and 50cm wide. The tapestry shows Duke William of Normandy sailing across the English Channel with his army and horses, the Battle of Hastings and the death of King Harold II. The tapestry is on display in the Bayeux Museum in northern France.

Castles

The Normans built motte and bailey castles all around Britain to protect their new country. These consisted of a mound of earth known as a motte, with a wooden or stone tower on top called a keep. An enclosed area at the bottom of the mound, the bailey, housed the stables, storehouses, bakeries and quarters for the soldiers. These castles were quick and cheap to build, but not very strong and they caught fire easily. The motte and bailey castles were soon replaced with stone castles. These were castles with tall, square keeps and thick walls that could hold off fierce enemy attacks.

Domesday Book

Between 1085 and 1086, William the Conqueror ordered a 'Great Survey' to find out who owned the land across England and parts of Wales. He also wanted to find out how much money could be raised in taxes. This information was recorded in the Domesday Book. Officials had to record how much land there was and the owner. The information was given to scribes and clerks who recorded it in the Domesday Book.

After William the Conqueror

William the Conqueror died on 9th September 1087 while fighting in France. He had decided to make his second son, William Rufus, the next King of England instead of his oldest son, Robert. Robert and his friends were not happy about the situation because they thought Robert should be king. Robert's followers led two rebellions against William Rufus over the next eight years and they were defeated both times. William Rufus died in a hunting accident in 1100 and his younger brother, Henry, became King of England.
